HARM REDUCTION ADVICE

If you are using any drugs, you can't always be sure what you're taking which can cause you problems – this can sometimes make using unpredictable, scary and risky. Getting educated on the facts can really help keep you safer.

- Mixing drugs and/or alcohol can be dangerous and you may be at increased risk: finding out more about how drugs interact with each other can be really useful. You can do this by phoning us on the number below for a confidential and informal chat. Alternatively take a look at www.drugwise.org.uk
- Using drugs and/or alcohol when you are by yourself can be dangerous and puts you more at risk. If you do choose to use, have a friend with you who has not used drugs and alcohol. Tell them what you have taken, this information can be vital if things go wrong and medical attention is needed.
- Using drugs and/or alcohol when you are unhappy may seem helpful but can actually make the situation worse. It's always better to talk to someone if you feel you need to. Contact us on the number below.
- Injecting any drugs can increase the risk of overdose and can put you at risk of viruses and infections like HIV and hepatitis. If you are injecting, it's important you get advice on how to be safer. Contact us on the number below, we'd like to talk to you about this to help keep you safe.
- If your drug and/or alcohol use is having a negative effect on any aspect of your life (school, home, money, friends etc.), we can help. See below for our contact details.
